

Show#200 Interview Aviva Weiss, Founder and President of Fun and Function

 SUNDAY, JANUARY 26, 2014 AT 3:16PM

On Monday night at 8pm, be sure to tune in for our newest episode of Hope Saves the Day on Autism Radio. Tonight's Show is with Host Paul Cimins. Who Speaks With President and Founder of Fun and Function Company LLC. Specially Designed Tools for Children with Disabilities Especially Autism.

Aviva Weiss is the founder and President of Fun and Function LLC, an innovative company based in the Philadelphia-area that creates fun and engaging products to make life better for kids with special needs.

The inspiration for her company was born out of frustration that she couldn't find kid-friendly sensory tools for her family's needs. Aviva launched Fun and Function in 2005, with the vision of realizing each child's potential. The company's innovative toys, games, clothing and therapy equipment are designed to build skills and self-esteem, and still be affordable and durable.

Aviva oversees the day-to-day operations of Fun and Function and has successfully expanded the company to a broad customer base of families, schools, clinics and hospitals. She has been featured in Inc. Magazine, the Washington Post, and Fox TV.

Aviva is sought-after for her expertise in creating inclusive environments where all children can thrive together, and has worked with a developmental pediatrician to guide children's museums toward improving experiences for children with special needs.

Earlier in her career, Aviva worked at leading institutions including Children's Hospital of Philadelphia and St. Christopher's Hospital. She earned her B.S. in Psychology from Touro College and her Masters in Occupational Therapy from The Richard Stockton College, graduating summa cum laude from both programs.

Aviva thrives on the challenges of running a business, and loves being the mom of six wonderful children.
